Every week HBO brings you exciting new movies and exclusive special productions. These premiere on Sunday and Friday, the days desired by most viewers. But since one viewing time doesn't suit everyone, we repeat these shows on different days at different times during the next four weeks. This schedule lets you choose the best time for you.

If you miss a Premiere that begins its run at the end of a month there's no need to worry. These shows complete their four week run in the following month.

HBO Specials and the ON LOCATION comedy showcase also follow this four week Premiere pattern. It gives you exceptional home entertainment that's convenient, too.

Born to Kill

Phyllis Diller ON LOCATION

AN EVENING WITH Sammy Davis Jr.

It's an international event like no other: a special HBO production that captures all the drive and spirit of one of today's most high-powered performers, Sammy Davis Jr. It's his entire, uninterrupted nightclub act! For 90 unforgettable minutes, the perennial Mr. Entertainment sings, dances, jives and jokes with his Acapulco audience. Highlights include songs like Mr. Bojangles and Candy Man, a smashing Sinatra medley and his classic Rock-a-bye Your Baby sung in eight different voice impressions from Bogart to Brando.

Sammy's whole show has never been presented to the home audience before. HBO also follows Sammy on a night out in world famous Acapulco clubs and takes you backstage for an off-the-cuff rehearsal. The result—electric entertainment.

HBO's next SPECIAL: Ann Corio's This Was Burlesque!

March 6, 10, 14, 19, 22

"Let's say it right at the top, 'Dog Day Afternoon' is one of the big ones. It is terrific. It is an exceptional movie. It is swarming with energy, excitement and drama and a stunning performance by Al Pacino." -Gene Shalit, NBC-TV

Chris Sarandon pleads with Pacino to surrender

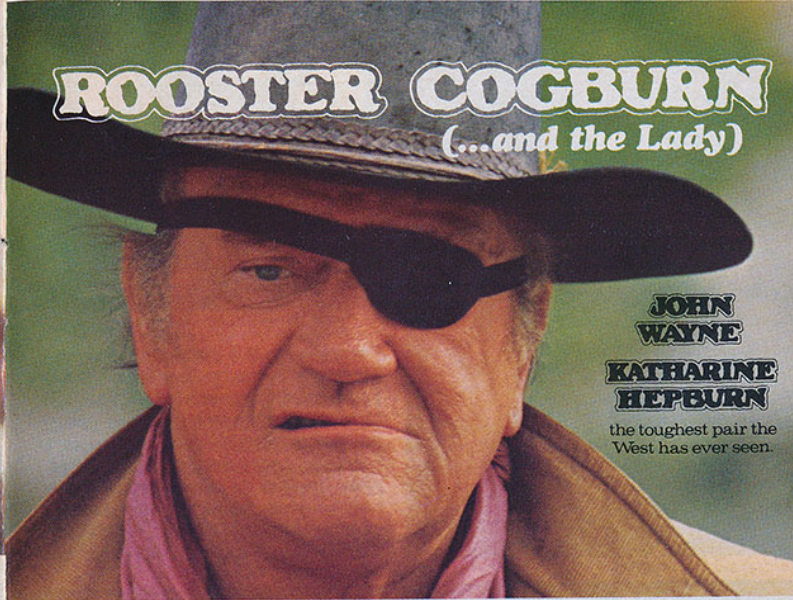

John Cazale is Pacino's bungling partner

Nobody could dream him up. His incredible bank robbery is all the more bizarre—because it's true. Al Pacino stars as the frantic and befuddled "brains" behind a Brooklyn bank heist that goes awry. In the midst of mutual desperation, a bond of affection grows between the hostages and their reluctant captors as the strange motives for the robbery become clear. To its compelling end, Dog Day Afternoon is a bitingly funny and compassionate movie. Every facet of acting and production reflects the hard-edged quality of Sidney Lumet's direction. Nominated for 6 Oscars. Rated R, strong language and mature theme. (2:05)

March 13,17,21,25,26

He's a one-eyed, potbellied, whiskey-soaked Federal marshal hired to track down a gang of desperados. She's a fast-tongued, high-toned spinster whose father was killed by the same gang. Together, they give chase in this comedy-adventure sequel to True Grit.

The Wayne-Hepburn duo, something both wanted for years, is all magic and mayhem right down to the film's explosive ending. Sample line: (Kate to a drunken Wayne) "Have you evah seen an enlarged picture of a drunkard's livah?" Rated PG for salty language. (1:47)

March 27,31

92 in the shade

Peter Fonda is a young drifter in the Florida Keys who decides to become a fishing guide for well-heeled tourists. But Warren Oates, a veteran guide who doesn't appreciate Fonda's penchant for free enterprise, moves to eliminate the competition—permanently. A cast including Margot Kidder, Elizabeth Ashley and Burgess Meredith led

Sylvia Miles exercises with Burgess Meredith

The New York Times to call the film "very, very good. It's full of odd, headstrong, seemingly disconnected moments, that only a novelist (Tom McGuane) would dare." A title note: 92 is the temperature at which most murders are committed. Rated R, nudity, adult theme. (1:33)

March 25,28

Elizabeth Ashley in 92 in the Shade

THE MANCHU EAGLE MURDER CAPER MYSTERY

Jackie Coogan, one of Hollywood's living legends, plays a delightfully harried Police Chief in this tongue-in-cheek look at the whodunit murder mysteries of the 1930s. Gabriel Dell stars as a mail-order private eye whose misadventures in solving a rash of small-town rub outs keeps you guessing—and laughing. Catch Barbara Harris as a vengeful schoolmarm, Vincent Gardenia as Big Daddy and Will Geer as a frazzled country doctor. Big laughs, great cast. Rated PG, adult humor. (1:22)

March 18,21,24,29

Gabe Dell (left) pulls the nose of the law in Manchu Eagle.

Rebel fury—
the law can't touch him!

In rural Georgia where the illegal sport of cockfighting still flourishes, Warren Oates is one of the best-known trainers. But his boastful ways have lost him the Cockfighter of the Year award, his car and his girlfriend. Oates vows to literally not say a word until he wins back his medal and ragged honor. Jack Nicholson says "It's brilliant and Warren Oates is as good in that movie as any actor is allowed to be in this world." Rated R, adult situations and graphic fight scenes. (1:23)

BORN TO KILL

March 11,14,17,22

Warren Oates in Born To Kill

On screen he played a child-hating, dog-kicking, acid-tongued old swindler.
It was no act.

W.C. Fields and Me

Even a man who hates children and dogs has to love someone. The someone was Carlotta Monti (Valerie Perrine), sometime mistress to Fields in his later years. Oscar winner Rod Steiger captures the hilarious and strange blend of cowardice and braggadocio that made Fields a pure original on film—and pure contradiction in life. One memorable moment: W.C. propping up the deceased John Barrymore (Jack Cassidy) for a round of toasts—"He would have wanted it that way." A bittersweet laugh fest, ahh yesss. Rated PG, strong language. (1:51)

March 20,24,28

The Romantic Englishwoman

Michael Caine and Oscar winner Glenda Jackson are wealthy, bored and bright—he a successful novelist, she his frustrated wife, and both suspicious of infidelities. Gigolo poet Helmut Berger abruptly turns their lives into a testy triangle of passion and anger. It's a savage comedy-of-manners with Jackson and Caine battling with an intensity and sophistication that recalls "Virginia Woolf." With Joseph Losey's direction and Tom Stoppard's scripting, The Romantic Englishwoman has a visual style and verbal polish that puts it among the best of the British imports. Rated R, nudity, adult situations and language. (1:57)

March 18,21,24,29,31

"You can't strike bargains with God!" he thunders, and from this passion and belief an historic schism with the Church begins.

Stacy Keach gives a towering performance as church-rebel Martin Luther in this epic play written by Britain's foremost playwright, John Osborne. From his ordination as a monk through his lingering self-doubts and finally to his maturing as a world spiritual leader, Luther's humanity emerges—mercurial and fascinating. Stacy Keach, says Clive Barnes, is "the finest American classic actor since John Barrymore." Also note the great staging by the American Film Theatre. (1:52)

March 4,7,10,15,29

SPORTS

With Bill Walton scoring heavily and leading the NBA in blocked shots and rebounds, the Portland Trail Blazers are first in the Pacific Division and first in the league in points. But they will have their hands full when they tangle with George McGinnis, Julius Erving and the rest of the Philadelphia 76ers on March 1. And on March 29 they will meet the Buffalo Braves.

Although women tennis players are weary from three months' travel, they will be geared up for the final stop on their winter circuit: the $150,000 Virginia Slims Championships. And, subject to FCC approval, HBO will be at Madison Square Garden for the final match. In the past, two players have dominated the tournament—Chris Evert and Evonne Goolagong. This year look for Martina Navratilova and Virginia Wade to give Evert some competition.

Enthusiasm will be further evident in other performers this month on HBO. Golden Glove boxers will continue to slug their way toward the finals when they go at it on March 4. Also in March will be a unique look at Muhammad Ali. In a film produced and directed by Arnie Stone, Ali will be seen at his two-sided best: dazzling people with his words at Harvard and working in the ring, where his fists will do the talking.

When it comes to verve, it is hard to match professional wrestlers, who will be seen grappling on March 7 and 28.

Herman Weiskopf

Bill Walton of the Portland Trail Blazers

Playoff Reminder Starting in April opening rounds of the National Hockey League and National Basketball Association begin. HBO will be at selected arenas to bring you exciting action from both leagues.

CLASSIC

Clouds Over Europe (1939) Major Hammond of Scotland Yard (Ralph Richardson) is certain it's no coincidence that four experimental bombers have disappeared in one year. Crack pilot Laurence Olivier agrees, but too late, when he's captured by a floating nest of spies. Newspaper reporter Valerie Hobson finds something better than a scoop—the young Olivier—in this WW II thriller with a veddy British sense of humor. (B/W-1:27)

March 23,27,31
Rembrandt (1936) Charles Laughton is Rembrandt at the height of his fame—rich, extravagant, the most sought-after man in Holland. But when his wife, the source of his joy and inspiration, dies and an adoring public begins to shun his work, he slides into poverty. This is the story of Rembrandt's survival. Laughton is magnificent as the wily genius in one of Alexander Korda's finest films. (B/W-1:29)

March 9,13,16

Laurence Olivier in Clouds Over Europe

Angela Winkler in Katharina Blum

FOREIGN

Down the Ancient Stairs (1975) Marcello Mastroianni plays doctor in this fine political allegory where the closed society of a mental institution is compared to the ravings of 1930 Fascist Italy outside. When he's not obsessively searching for a biological cause for insanity, he is wooing various and beautiful women. Director Mauro Bolognini creates a luminous and moving world of paradox. (Dubbed-R-1:41)

March 16,20,23

The Lost Honor of Katharina Blum (1975) A quiet, proud woman is caught in a nightmare of police terrorism and smear journalism in West Germany. Angela Winkler offers a darkly stunning performance in this political drama—one which warns against a free press that can create fear as easily as it can overlook facts. "Has an energy level akin to Z" says William Wolf of Cue. (Subtitled-R-1:42)

PHYLLIS DILLER

On Location

She's about as subtle as an armored truck. And a lot more fun. Example: "I have bad news about Jimmy Carter. Three of his front teeth died of overexposure." Or, "The kids used to play doctor and nurse. Now they play senator and secretary."

HBO's ON LOCATION brings you Phyllis Diller in an exclusive, out-front act that's fresh, funny and as frank as her Dracula cackle. Join Her Daffyness as she one-lines her way through life's absurdities. Also, have a rare glimpse of Ms. Diller as a serious concert pianist... and of what she's like before the footlights go on.

Don't miss her ON LOCATION, Home Box Office's great showcase for today's comedy talent. Coming next month: George Carlin.
